A Letter from Principal Wardle

Bison Parents,

As we approach the beginning of a new semester and a new year, I enter this new year with Hope, and the sense of a brighter future for education as a whole. This is not to diminish the current struggle we are in. These past 9 months have been the most difficult in my 23 years in education. Students have struggled. Uncertainty has reigned. Yet, it has also forced the system of education to adapt and think differently. Our strengths have been highlighted, and weaknesses more clearly identified. Above all, the need and power of human connection and relationships in education have come to the forefront. How we grade, what we determine to be success, the fundamental needs of adolescents, and new ways to look at learning and delivery of education have all taken innovative steps forward in this season of Covid-19. Some ideas we will keep, some we will not.

While no one can definitively say what education will look like in the next few years, options for access to all students at all times have been dutifully pursued. The foundation of the relationship between a student and a teacher for learning is more apparent than ever. Working with students and families in all types of circumstances has been opened. And the need for community and co-curriculars to support students is ever apparent.

To put it succinctly, I believe there is more potential for growth in education right now than there has been for decades. And I believe that education will be stronger and better in the years ahead.

And so, I look forward to 2021. We all look forward to returning to a new normal, retaining the finest of the old, while incorporating the best of what we have learned this past year.

Blessings to you and your family.

#OneBG,

Jeff Wardle
