2020-2021 Fourth Quarter

A Letter from Principal Wardle

Bison Parents,

As we enter the final stage, the 4th quarter of the 20-21 school year, one ideal that has been embedded into me since childhood comes to mind. Resilience.

I was reminded recently of the true meaning of resilience. It is not simply returning to what once was, or riding out a hardship, or coming out no worse off after a storm. No, resilience is more than that. It is living intentionally in the storm, seeing the opportunities that may be hard to find, but are nevertheless unique because of the hardships, and leaning into those opportunities for a better future. When an earthquake hits, we see the faultlines and fractures more readily, but then we can also address them for the next time, so that we are stronger. Resilience is coming out of the storm even better, stronger, and more unified than ever before.

Our education system has experienced trauma this year, statewide and nationwide. No doubt, it has been very hard on all stakeholders. Yet I would be remiss if I didn't believe that our system couldn't also be resilient in these times, and stronger for it as we all come out of this devastating pandemic.

This past year, we have found new ways to connect with students at any time, and anywhere. In the years ahead, we will be able to better serve students with elongated illnesses and injuries. We realized more than ever that finding a connection with each and every student is vital to teaching. We can utilize new methods of gathering student feedback and give them a voice as we look ahead, knowing that relationships will always be at the core of teaching and learning. We have learned how to assess differently, give feedback more quickly and in new and different methodologies, and we have learned empathy. Our school, our classes, and our programming will be better served in the future as we choose to be resilient and come out on the other side stronger than ever!

I look forward to finishing strong, and a new chapter for BGHS and education.

OneBG,

Jeff Wardle
